

FEAR ADMIRAL BYRD LOST

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

JOHN DILLINGER, Public Enemy No. 1, walked out of a Chicago theater Sunday night and fell headlong before the guns of the law. One by one the noted gunmen are overtaken by retribution—Verne Miller, machine-gunner in the Kansas City union depot massacre, slain by gangster enemies in Detroit; Clyde Barrow and Dillinger mowed down by ambushed police.

State Committee Calls Attention to Some Misunderstandings

Politics will enter the home stretch Tuesday when county and district candidates will open fire at Rocky Mound beginning the main Hempstead county stumpspeaking tour.

Two weeks ago there were two isolated speaking dates, but on Tuesday the candidates launch a continuous speaking tour which runs daily from thence on to election day August 14.

From Rocky Mound the candidates move to Shover Springs on Wednesday.

Run-Off Primary

LITTLE ROCK.—Although officials of the Democratic State Central Committee have issued innumerable letters and issued several bulletins concerning the run-off primary, to be invoked generally for the first time in Arkansas this year, indications are that considerable confusion will result, the officials said Saturday.

Reports have been received that some counties are planning no run-off primary for candidates for the legislature, while other county committees are forcing new candidates to select a specific legislator for an opponent, as was done in the Supreme Court race. In some instances, efforts are being made to arrange run-off primaries for the justices of the peace.

"The runoff primary applies to state, district and county offices," Harvey G. Combs, secretary of the state committee said. "Legislative candidates must participate in the run-off, but no township offices are included."

"The run-off primary law does not make specific provisions for the run-off where more than one candidate is to be elected, but the State Central Committee attempted to make rules to clarify this situation."

"Under a rule of the committee, where more than one candidate is to be elected, twice as many names shall appear on the run-off ballot as there are vacancies, except where one candidate receives a clear majority in the first election."

An example:

"For example, there are 12 candidates for representative in Pulaski county. If no candidate receives a clear majority in the first election, the eight high candidates will participate in the run-off. If one candidate obtains a clear majority of the votes in the first election, then he is nominated and there will be six names on the run-off ballot, with three to be nominated."

"If four should be running with two to be elected, and none received a majority, then all four would be candidates in the run-off. A plurality of votes may nominate in the run-off."

"We are attempting to get these matters as clear as possible in the minds of county committees and we will be glad to answer any questions before the election."

Mr. Combs said he advised one county committee that the committee may take the ballots after they are counted and seal them and lock them in a safe place, so that the committee may use the same ballot boxes for the run-off. The integrity of the first election ballots must be preserved, he said.

S. L. Cornelius, 72, Is Buried Monday

Hempstead County Citizen Succumbs Sunday Night at Fulton

S. L. Cornelius, 72, died at the home of his son-in-law, Louie Johnson, at Fulton Sunday night after an illness of two months. Mr. Cornelius was well known over the county, having spent practically his entire life here.

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at Water Creek church near Fulton.

Surviving are his widow, one brother, C. E. Cornelius of Hope, two daughters who reside in Texas; and one son, P. A. Cornelius of near Hope.

Dillinger Shot Down by U.S. Agents

Father Goes to Chicago to Claim Body of Desperado

WAS IN DISGUISE

Had His Face Lifted, Hair Dyed—Added Glasses and Moustache

MOOREVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—John Dillinger, Sr., left Monday for Chicago to claim the body of his son.

Ill, the 70-year-old man was accompanied by a publisher friend and a halfbrother of John Dillinger.

The desperado's funeral will be held Wednesday.

Copyright, Associated Press

CHICAGO.—(AP)—John Dillinger is dead.

He swaggered out of a neighborhood theater here Sunday night into the raking fire of government guns.

A fusillade of five shots cut him down. One struck him in the neck, two in the body—and the other two bullets struck the legs of two women standing nearby.

One of 15 Department of Justice agents fired all the shots, Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the office here, said, but he declined to reveal the agent's name.

Purvis sat in a car in front of the theater and watched Dillinger purchase a ticket and enter the house. The desperado had disguised himself by dyeing his hair, undergoing a facelift operation, having his nose straightened, wearing gold spectacles and a moustache, and obliterating the whorls of his fingertips with acid.

As Dillinger came out two hours later Chief Purvis gave a casual signal and the agents leaped forward to shoot the fugitive down.

Killed at Theater

CHICAGO.—(AP)—The government got John Dillinger Sunday night just as it promised to do.

It had him shot dead by 15 creek marksmen among its department of justice agents and he stepped jauntily out of the tiny Biograph theater on the north side of the city, ending the greatest manhunt in many years.

Crimes almost without number—robberies and murders—imputed to the Indiana farm boy who went wrong, were avenged as the hunted man crashed to the sidewalk before a large audience of expectant neighborhood folk.

There was only a trace of uncertainty about the way the government "rubbed out" the man for whose capture it offered $10,000 a few weeks ago.

Slain By 15 Men

He had been watching a picture entitled "Manhattan Melodrama," not knowing that his pursuers were waiting his exit with drawn guns. Finally out he came. Probably he never knew what had struck him down—15 shotguns held in expert hands.

A special detail on men designated months ago to stop depredations of Dillinger met him as he came out of the Biograph theater and slew him on the sidewalk.

Their chief, Melvin H. Purvis, was there and immediately identified him as the outlaw.

The government men had laid in wait for Dillinger for two and one-half hours after receiving word that he had entered the movie house, a small affair.

A woman was shot and seriously wounded by the government guns and taken to the Grant hospital. She was said to have been hit by a stray bullet.

Government agents refused to let anyone look at the body of the dead man. It was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital. It was still in the ambulance and no one could get near it.

Neighbors of the place, suspicious of the actions of the non-uniformed government men, notified the Sheffield police station. A squad rushed to the theater, but were soon advised of the authority of Purvis' men, that the raid was not a "stick-up" and to "hang around and see the fun."

Then the bank robber came out and was shot in his tracks.

Body Cut To Pieces

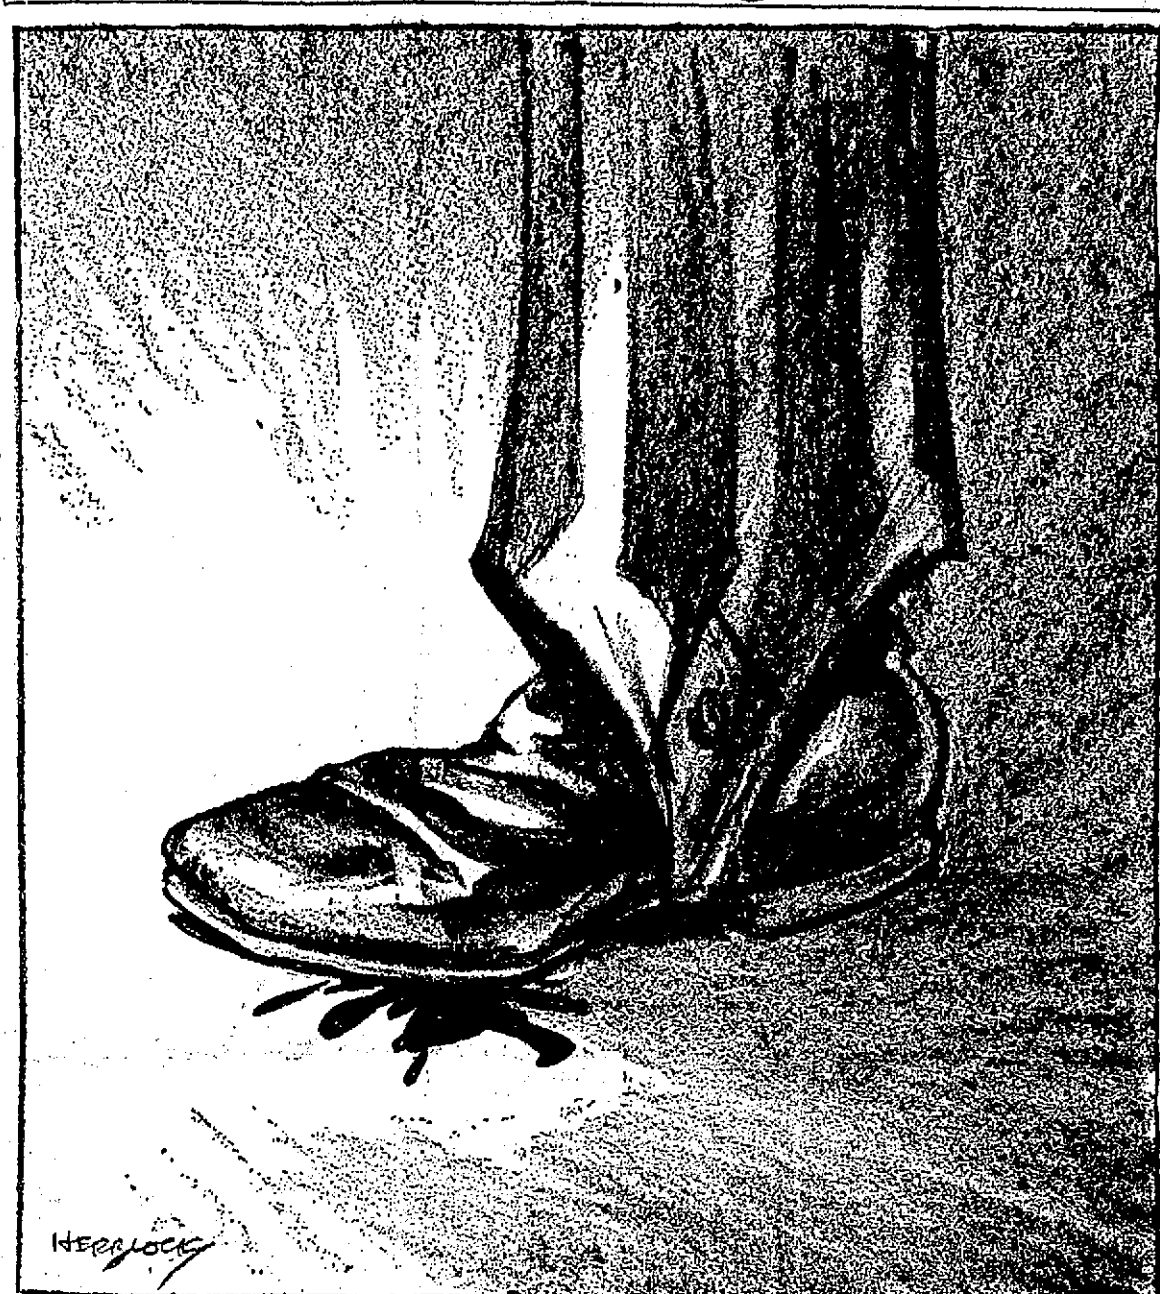

Dillinger was shot twice, officers who were guarding the body said. A reporter for the Associated Press viewed the body just before it was taken to the county morgue and described it as a "bloody mess."

One bullet entered the head just below the eye and another pierced the heart.

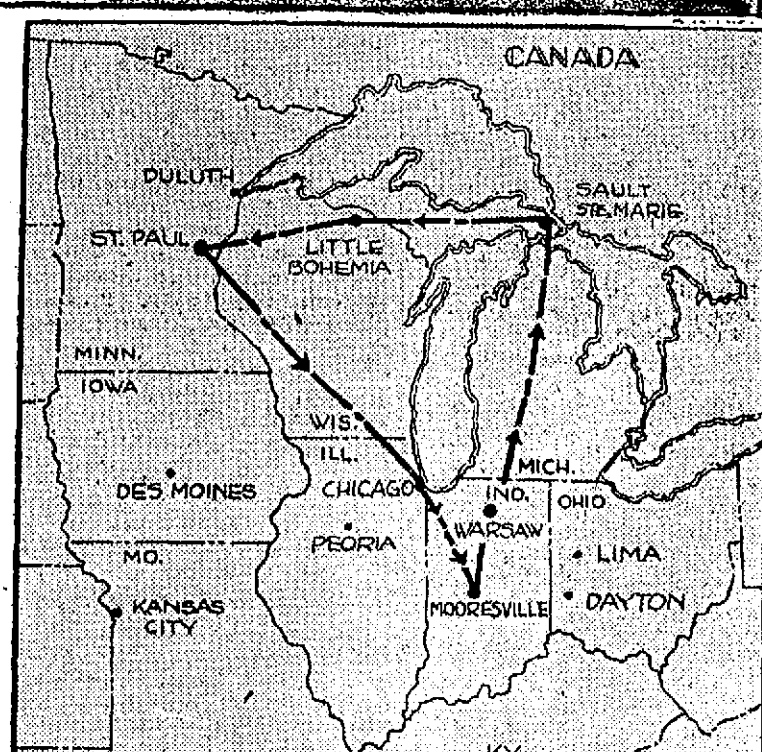

Dillinger was wearing a white shirt open at the throat and gray trousers. Half a hundred feet away thronged hundreds of residents of the scene—Fulton street and Lincoln avenue on the cosmopolitan northwest side—aware that drama was about to be

End of the Dillinger Case

Bulletproof vests and pistols formed the loot of John Dillinger, above, in his later daring raid, on the police station at Warsaw, Ind. He fled with a companion in a waiting auto after sounds of his scuffle with a Warsaw policeman had spread an alarm to which vigilantes futilely responded.

This map shows the area over which John Dillinger and his gang left a trail of death and terror, the line indicating the outlaw's path after he shot his way out of a trap in St. Paul. From there he went to visit his father in Moorsville, Ind., for a "family reunion," held up the Warsaw police station, hid out with relatives of John Hamilton, his chief aide, in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and then battled free from another trap at Little Bohemia lodge, Wis. The hunt for the gang extended across Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan.

Three Are Sought in Break From Pen

Ray Hamilton and 2 Pals Escape—Charlie Frazier Badly Wounded

HUNTSMVILLE, Texas.—(AP)—Three desperate killers who fled from the very shadow of the electric chair in this state's most spectacular prison break Monday fought their way through a dragnet that entwined three states and reached to the borders of Mexico.

Massed forces of county, state and federal officers sought dapper Raymond Hamilton, one-time running mate of the late Clyde Barrow; Joe Palmer, a Barrow companion until the desperado's bloody death; and "Blackie" Thompson, killer and bank robber.

They were three of six convicts who weathered fire of prison guards and escaped in waiting automobiles.

The mercury climbed to 105 degrees here Monday on N. E. O'Neal's official thermometer for the second hottest day of the year.

Last Wednesday the O'Neal thermometer recorded a maximum of 108, while at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station 105 degrees was the highest reading.

were given a respite as the New York temperature dropped to 75.

The death list stands at approximately 275.

By the Associated Press

A scorching heat pall hung over most of the nation Sunday, parching cities and country, as deaths mounted to 267 from the protracted drought siege.

The Southwest and Midwest were hardest hit but nearly all other sections suffered from the extended hot weather with but slight relief for scattered areas in immediate prospect.

Hundreds of prostrations were reported over the country from the blistering week-end.

In the grain belt, records melted, crops wilted, water supplies dwindled and the 40-year aridity record rolled up by the proportions of a continuing calamity, with late summer crops in wide sections approaching the fate of the spring maturities.

A sudden breeze materialized in the afternoon in Chicago to bring a slight degree of comfort after the thermometer shot up to 101 at 1 p. m. Most of Illinois' 60 heat deaths occurred in the metropolitan. The total in the city Friday was 17; Saturday 21; Sunday, 17.

Omaha, Neb., had a reading of 100 degrees at noon and a heat death at Lincoln boosted the state's total to 38.

Stolen Bonds Held by Arkansas Men

Jonesboro and Black Rock Citizens Seized by U. S. Agents

JONESBORO, Ark.—Charged with handling and selling bonds stolen in a mail robbery at New York about a year ago, Charles B. Barnett of Jonesboro and Jay H. Myers of Black Rock, both well known business men, were arrested Saturday by federal officers.

Barnett, who owns an investment company here, was freed on $1,000 cash bond and will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Edward L. Westbrook, Jr., here August 7. Myers waived preliminary hearing and was bound over on $1,000 bond to the federal grand jury. Both pleaded not guilty.

Myers was one of the best known members of the 1931 legislature and was secretary of the state Agricultural Credit Administration.

Myers, explaining his connection with the bonds said that a man representing himself as a Canadian oil

Tractor Party on Way to Outpost Loses the Trail

Trail Flags Missing 50 Miles Out—Still Short 70 Miles

PARTY IS STALLED

Tractor Group Drive 130 Miles in Bitter Weather to Negotiate 50

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica.—(AP)—Grave concern for the safety of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was felt Monday as the trail leading to his lonely weather observation outpost was lost.

The tractor party, which set out Friday to bring him back to the main base here, reported it could not pick up the trail.

The group are 50 miles out on the 120-mile trail, but the orange flags with which the trail had been marked were not found beyond the 50-mile point.

Byrd followed the lonely trail four months ago to take up his vigil at the weather observation outpost.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, in command of the tractor party, said he traveled through bitter weather a total distance of 130 miles to reach the 50-mile station.

14 Dies as Motor Bus Upsets, Burns

Baseball Rooters Go Over Embankment to Their Death

CSSINING, N. Y.—A motor bus rolled down a steep quarter-mile hill here Sunday and plunged over a foot embankment, bursting into flames and trapping two score passengers in the wreckage.

Fourteen passengers were burned to death, their bodies charred beyond recognition. Several persons, their clothing flaming, got up, ran to the Hudson river, 25 feet away, and plunged in. Two were pulled out of the wreckage before the flames reached them. Twenty-five others were snatched from the roaring debris and taken to hospitals. Of these at least half were expected to die of their burns and other injuries.

Men, women and children were among the passengers, but as badly were the bodies blackened and dismembered that identification was impossible at first.

All were rooters of the baseball team of the Young Men's Democratic League of the 20th Assembly district, Brooklyn, which was scheduled to play the convict team in Sing Sing prison, only a few hundred yards away from the scene of the tragedy.

Relatives of those in the ill-fated bus saw them hurtling to destruction from six other busses in the caravan but were powerless to aid. Mothers, fathers and children ringed the burning wreckage, crying to rescuers to snatch their relatives from the fire.

Your Health
By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Poorists Worst Form of Skin Disease
One of the most annoying diseases of the skin is called psoriasis. In this condition the skin peels away in large amounts in the form of silvery-like scales. These scales develop on top of the chronic inflammation of the skin. Treatment of this condition has been almost the despair of skin specialists for years. All sorts of remedies are constantly being tried. These frequently produce a clearing of the condition, but seldom a complete cure. Because it is associated with the general reactions of the body as a whole, psoriasis frequently changes its character with changes in the diet, with freedom from worry, with the incidence of some other disease, or with almost any condition affecting the body as a whole. When the white scales are forcibly removed, there are tiny bleeding points just beneath each of them. With many patients the areas of inflammation disappear either wholly or partially during the summer and return in the cold weather. The disease usually appears first on the outer or extensor sides of the arms and legs, especially around the elbows and knees. It may, however, occur on any part of the body, but most rarely on hands and feet. Psoriasis occurs most frequently in the second and third decade of life, but no age is exempt. It is unusual for a first attack to appear after 45 years of age. The disease apparently is not contagious or directly transmitted from parents to children, but heredity seems to play a part in some cases. The definite cause of the disease has not been established, however. In early stages of this condition, a modification of the diet with elimination of meats sometimes is effective. The skin usually is treated with mild ointments. A chronic case of the ointments most frequently used contains a substance called chrysarobin, which seems to have the specific quality of clearing up the spots. The strength of chrysarobin used varies according to the individual case, and the doctor prescribes it according to its effect on the skin of the individual patient. Sometimes persons with psoriasis are improved by having injections of blood into the muscles and sometimes by being given what is called a non-specific protein treatment, in which boiled milk or typhoid vaccine is used as the protein substance to be injected. Obviously these methods of treatment must be administered by a doctor.

Individualism Dies in Underworld, "Ransom" Shows How Modern Crime Picture Changes

By BRUCE CATTON
Crime and criminals have changed in the United States during the last generation, just as everything else has changed. Rugged individualism has just about vanished from the underworld; in its place there is a regimentation strict enough to satisfy the most ardent of collectivists. You get a picture of this change in Charles Francis Coe's new novel, "Ransom."

Mr. Coe tells about a young crook who, back before the war, planned to make himself rich by a carefully devised kidnapping. He stole the baby daughter of a rich banker and hid her in a way that was absolutely beyond detection. Then he figured he would wait two years to let the hue and cry die down, before going out to collect the ransom. It was a good idea—but while he was waiting he wandered into Canada, got picked up on an old swindling charge, and was sent to prison for 20 years.

He got out in 1933 and hurried back to pick up the threads of his ransom plot. And he instantly found that the whole crime picture had changed. The day of the lone worker was over. So our crook has to seek an alliance with the local gang chiefs, and what happens to his careful plot thereafter—how it becomes the plaything of high pressure, gangsters and politicians, with its original sponsor getting doublecrossed and frozen out—makes an exciting and illuminating story. Published by Lippincott, the novel sells for $2.

YOUR CHILDREN
By Olive Roberts Barton

Babies Sleep More Restfully in Beds Made Flat and Smooth

I don't wonder that some children hate to go to bed in hot weather. If you've seen what I've seen here and there, in the way of beds and bedding for babies and little children, you wouldn't wonder about their distaste. You know that hot feel even of a smooth sheet over a firm mattress when you touch the bed on a hot night. You are sure that there must be a stove under it with a special burner where your torso touches. How would you feel if you had a mattress that sagged like a hammock in the middle, and over it a pad and a rubber sheet, perhaps another pad for good measure and then a rumpled sheet over that, holding in the waves in every fold? A strong smell of ammonia added won't help any. Keep Bed Smooth, Odorless. Put this bed over in a corner somewhere, let some one close the door and leave us to our misery. "Would you yell? No, we would feel like hunting up a weapon and going out for home on prey. We certainly would vault over those high sides (perhaps the winter shields are still on) and get out of that place so we could live. A baby's or child's bed should be flat, smooth, and wrinkleless and without any odor of urine. There should be a bit of rubber sheeting drawn tight over the mattress (rinsed and sunned each day) but it should not extend up under the head. It causes head sweating. If baby has a pillow of "feathers" take it away. Use a piece of something (not wool) folded flat and covered by a cool slip. Pillows are seldom used for babies, but if he has the habit, break him in to a very flat cool one. Floor Sleeping Advisable. Now pull his bed away from the corner, out where the night breeze, if any, can circulate freely. Of course, this is taking it for granted that any change in weather is not going to catch any one napping, or that the house is not on a mountain top where nights mean blankets and coziness. Beds need to be made flat, sheets pulled tight, pillow slips smooth, and a whole general appearance of neatness should pervade. In the daytime the baby doesn't need a pillow to sit on in his perambulator. Fold something (not wool) under him flat. A bit of hardiness is good for a baby anyway. "Can I sleep on the floor, Mummy?" asks small Charles. Don't get that "impossible" look in your eyes, mother. Why not? A clean sheet, a flat cool floor—well, you know best, but I know what I'd take if my bed was a box of discomfort and the mercury was grinning from the top of the tube.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF
By Alicia Hart

Eat—And Be Happy—In Summer Diet Strict Watch Over Diet

It's more than likely that most women get pretty tired of hearing "Watch your diet!" Well, July and August are two months when you'll hear no such thing. You simply don't have to watch it during the hot months. Don't overeat, of course, but if anyone could stand the sight of very much food right now, but outside of the one rule, do about as you please as far as the daily diet is concerned. In other words, eat whatever you like—whatever you want it. Don't feel that you have to go to lunch just because it's one o'clock or to dinner because it's seven. If you're not hungry, pass up a meal and wait to eat until your stomach reminds you to order something in the way of nourishment. Salads, jellied soups, cold, crisp vegetables and fruits appeal to nearly everyone during this kind of weather. However, if you find yourself getting too tired of a cold diet, switch to a full-course hot meal and see how you feel. It may prove to be a Heaven-sent tonic! Don't forget to drink ten glasses of cold (not ice-cold) liquids a day. Plain water is preferable—if not, then plain fruit juices.

SOPHIE KERR'S GREAT NOVEL "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

BEHIN HERE TODAY
JANE KERRY comes to New York, New York, and especially AMY JACKSON, that she can make a success of her life. Amy has been her best friend until now. AND JACKSON broke the engagement. Jane had forced upon him and married Amy. In New York Jane abides a position in a real estate office and soon is making a large income. She has no more to do with ROBERT THORPE, married, but free of him. When he offers to hear the expense of their child she contemptuously dismisses him. Amy takes the baby home. A very amusing never to reveal its parentage. An American enters the World War. Howard decides to enlist in the aviation corps. Amy, heavily sick over this impending separation, is obliged to play hostess to a commencement dinner party at which Jane is a guest. Amy starts a plan to keep Howard from leaving her terror over his departure. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII

"ELBERT was very kind," said Howard. "My place will be saved for me. They won't take on anyone else. At least not for an any other year." He went on. "I'm glad that much is settled. The old chap offered to continue my salary out of his own pocket." "But you couldn't take that," said Amy. "No, I couldn't take it, but I wanted to. He said he had no near kin, that he wanted to make it possible for me to go without feeling worried about you." "Father and Mother would like me to come and live with them, but I'm not going to do it. This is our home, and I'm going to stay in it until you come back. This war won't last long." "But, darling Amy, if you were with them there'd be somebody to look after you." "No, I won't go, Howard. I don't need anyone to look after me. But I did think maybe your mother would like to come here. She can't go abroad again now and she hasn't any fixed place to live. I don't know, though. If I should give music lessons, that might bother her." "If you give music lessons?" "I'm not going to sit around and do nothing but wait. I'd go crazy. I'll give lessons and get the Congregational church organ to play. It's not much pay, but it's not much work either. And with half a dozen or so pupils a week I'd make enough for the running expenses of the house, except the rent. If your mother would come, she could be with Nancy while I'm out. If she doesn't come there's always Mrs. Pearce, and Nancy's so good—" "The little girl looked up. "Nancy good girl," she said mischievously. She spoke distinctly, with no sturring, but her voice was still sweetly babyish. "So you are a good girl," said Howard, patting her hand. "The best little girl I know. Good little Nancy." "Good little Nancy, dear little Nancy," she said, beaming at him with a sudden radiant smile. "But, Amy," went on Howard still patting the child's hand, "I'm not getting pay, you know, more than I'll need. I'll be able to send you something." "Then we'll save something." By great effort they were talking as if it meant nothing special, but they did not look at each other, except with quick, almost furtive glances. Neither of them could eat, but they both made pretense. Amy sipping tea, Howard crumpling his roll beside his plate. Even Nancy felt the tension. When Amy lifted her head and unpinched her bib, the child turned her face to be kissed. "I love you, mummy," she said fondly. "Go and kiss Daddy, too," said Amy. Nancy came around the table in a rush of affection: "I love you, Daddy." "She can play in the sandpile until time for her nap," said Amy, as if this wasn't part of every clear day's program. But she had to say something, she was so close to crying. Howard carried Nancy outside and when he came back Amy's throat had stopped choking. "Elbert thinks if I pass the tests there'll be no doubt that I'll get a commission. I'll be interested to take them. I ought to tell me a lot about my eyes and my sense of balance and so on." "Why are you so set on aviation?" asked Amy, thinking frankly of spinning, crashing, burning planes, but determined to show no fear. "Oh, it's the new big thing and I've got a regular kid hankering to drive a plane. Besides," he finished bitterly, "If I've got to kill other men, I'd prefer to do it at as far a distance as possible. Let's not go into that."

AMY did not say anything more. They both tried, as they had tried from the first decision, to be commonplace and practical, but the days went by in a strange hurried chaos, where there seemed to be no usual adjustment. When Howard passed the first physical test he would be sent to Texas for training, but beyond that he couldn't plot his future. Nor did he try. The dean, the president and Professor Elbert were pulled and manipulated such influences as they could devise to get him a commission, and he had to go to Washington twice to see about it. Professor Elbert went with him on one of these trips and came back sporting with rage. "These small minded jacks-in-office dressed in a little brief authority!" raved the old man. Howard grinned when he told this to Amy. "He had to wait three hours to see somebody in the War Department and he's carried on like a man ever since, regular orations! Mixing his metaphors and grinding his teeth!" Says she going to vote Republican the next election." Amy was glad to find something to laugh at without effort. "But at the same time he's an old darling. He's written to your mother. Did you know that? I had a letter from her while you were gone. And she's continuing to stay, provided she can pay part of the living expenses. She says if the plane bothers her she'll put cotton in her ears and make motions. Your mother's the best sport!" It was not until the time was actually set for Howard's leaving that Amy spoke again of wanting a child. "Don't you see?" she said. "It's our love for each other. It's you and me, living together in one body, Howard. I'd be so infinitely happier if I knew I was going to have a child. It would be easier to stand your being away." "But, Amy, suppose I don't come back. We've got to think about that, too." "No, I won't think about that. I won't think of it for one second. I want another reason to make you look out for yourself. If we had a child you'd not take so many risks. You'd not do extra foolhardy things—" "A war isn't exactly the place to be cautious." "A war is exactly the place to be cautious. A dead soldier's no use to his country. Those young British officers who lead their men over the top with a swagger stick! Magnificent in one way, but a fearful waste of good material if they want to win. You'll never be a coward, not for yourself, but you're being a coward for me. You're going into an adventure of life and death. I have a right to my own life and death adventure. That's not sentimental tosh either. It is true." "Yes," he said at last. "It is true." They were very pitiful, those two, in the last hours of Howard's stay. They were stoically calm. They intended small busy duties about the house and when Amy packed his bag she sent him down in the garden with Nancy, but that was a mistake, for she could hear their voices and the tears she had dreaded could not be held back. At the end of it she washed her face and went down smiling. He was to leave on the train that his mother would arrive on, for Mrs. Jackson had been afraid of her own courage and had so arranged things that she would see him for that one moment only. She had been generous, too, in giving his time to Amy. And Professor and Mrs. Lowe left them alone until the time came to go to the station. Other faculty members and some of their friends were waiting for them there. Edgar Moreland wrung his hand. "I may be seeing you before long," he said. "I'm going in." As a small anxiety takes the sharp edge off a large one, so the necessity of making sure that Mrs. Jackson didn't miss Howard relieved the party. Amy stood by Howard's side, touching his arm, but she did not hold it. If she had held it, she would have clutched and dragged him back with all her strength. She knew it. They had said their goodby at home, alone. At the car steps they kissed once, and then she stood back, beside his mother. The two women watched the train pull out, looking at him as he leaned from the window. (Copyright, 1934, by Sophie Kerr) (To Be Continued)

Impeachment Is Sought in Dakota

Larger Faction Proceeds Without Establishing Its Legal Right

BISMARCK, N. D.—(49)—North Dakota's tangle of politico-legalities bounced into the lap of Attorney General P. C. Sathre Sunday and then out again. Sathre, according to associates, had been asked by senators supporting the action of William Langer, ousted governor, to rule on legality of the special session of the state legislature, called by Langer shortly before he was ousted by a supreme court decision.

The ruling, had the request not been withdrawn, would have held the legislature could meet legally only for purposes of impeachment and only in event a quorum was present in both houses, it was learned.

Unruffled by the lack of legal opinion, Langerites prepared for their meeting Monday, assured they said, of a quorum in the senate, lack of which has been a stumbling block in their proceedings.

"Should the house vote impeachment proceedings against present state officials, seven of whom have been opposed to the policies of Langer, they automatically would be suspended from office pending final disposition of charges brought by the house. House members friendly to Langer are to begin the impeachment action. Minority members of the house have little voice and have been consistently overridden in their attempts to induce members to adjourn sine die.

A shift in the Langer faction plans was indicated Saturday when the former governor made a dramatic appearance before the friendly house and asserted "I am still your governor," but indicated he wanted peaceful methods employed in the attempt to regain his position.

Previously with the calling out of guardsmen and threats of Langer partisans, there had been some fears of application of more forceful methods.

A mirror, mounted near the right front wheel, is being used to demonstrate to passengers how "knee action" wheels operate under actual running conditions.

Amnesia Sufferer Here Identified

Brother From West Texas Reveals Man Is Dee Chism

The amnesia victim, held in the county jail at Washington for nearly a week, was identified Monday as Dee Chism.

A brother who came here from West Texas made positive his identification. Chism was removed from the jail to Josephine hospital where he will be given medical treatment and a better chance to recover his memory.

Officers got in touch with the brother when Chism, under questioning Saturday night, told where his brother could be located.

Details of Chism's recent past could not be learned Monday.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 26

Referred to the People by the General Assembly in regular session assembled, 1933.

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of Arkansas and the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors, voting thereon, at such an election adopt such amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

Except for the purpose of refunding the existing outstanding indebtedness of the State and for assuming and refunding valid outstanding road improvement district bonds, the State of Arkansas shall issue no bonds or other evidence of indebtedness pledging the faith and credit of the State or any of its revenues for any purpose whatsoever, except by and with the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the State voting on the question at a general election or at a special election called for that purpose.

This Amendment to the Constitution of Arkansas shall be self-executing and require no enabling act, but shall take and have full force and effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed amendment.

WITNESS MY HAND and Official seal of this office the 28th day of March, 1934.

ED F. McDONALD, Secretary of State.

A record-breaking demand has sent Chevrolet production to its highest total in four years

SINCE January 1st, Chevrolet has produced more than half a million cars and trucks. This tremendous total has broken all Chevrolet records for the last four years. And here is the reason behind it: No other manufacturer has so much to offer as Chevrolet.

Chevrolet is the only low-priced car to give you patented Kneec-Action, and only patented Kneec-Action gives you shock-proof steering combined with the new jolt-proof gliding ride. Chevrolet alone in its field provides Fisher bodies with genuine No Draft Ventilation—the safest and most comfortable bodies built today. No low priced car but Chevrolet has safe, sure, cable-controlled brakes, the sturdy Y-K frame, and a dozen and one other important features. Do you wonder that the trend is to Chevrolet?

Let these features guide you when you buy your low-priced car. Don't accept anything less than all of them. And let yourself be guided by Chevrolet's popularity. As everyone knows, every buyer of a product is a recommendation, and Chevrolet can show you hundreds of thousands of them in only six short months!

DILLINGER SHOT

enacted. They had become suspicious when the non-uniformed federal men with their guns crowded the entrance of the theater.

He was shot at 10:45 p. m. central daylight time.

Only Saturday the bank robber and convict, had been reported near Culver, Ind. The day before he had been "seen" near Whiting, Ind. Each day, almost without a skin he had been reported from some point between the two coats.

He had not been in custody how, ever, since March 3, when he bluffed his way out of the county jail at Crown Point, Ind., with a wooden pistol. He had been awaiting trial for the slaying of Officer William O'Malley in the robbery of a bank at East Chicago, Ind.

He fled west after that, aiming perhaps to leave the country, but he was overtaken at Tucson, Arizona several weeks later and brought back to Crown Point by plane.

His Father Collapses

MOOREVILLE, Ind. John W. Dillinger Sr., collapsed here Sunday night when told his outlaw son had been slain by federal agents in Chicago.

"Is it really true," he asked in a bewildered fashion, "Are you sure there is no mistake?"

The elder Dillinger met reporters at the front door of his small farm on the outskirts of town. He was barefooted and clad in overalls. He had been ill from the intense heat and nearly fell over a chair when he was told.

"Well John is dead," he said "At last it has happened—the thing I have prayed and prayed would not happen. I want the body brought back here. I am so sick I can hardly talk."

Doris, 14, and Frances, 10 half-sisters of the outlaw were asleep in the farm house, tired from a day of doing the farm's chores, because of the illness of their father. They were not to be told until morning.

The elder Dillinger said that he did not know his son was in Chicago and weeks later and brought back to Crown Point by plane.

Officials Jubilant

WASHINGTON, (P)—Chiefs of the Justice Department, almost shouting their gratification over the death of John Dillinger upon whose head had been placed a $15,000 price, Sunday night asserted that the man-hunt would continue until all Dillinger assistants had been run down.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, rushing to his office at word that the desperado had been shot down, told newspapermen: "This does not mean the end of the Dillinger case. Anyone who ever gave any of the Dillinger mob any aid, or comfort or assistance will be vigorously prosecuted."

He referred to George (Baby Face) Nelson, Homer Van Meter and another gangster, Nelson, named by the Department of Justice as the killer of Special Agent W. Carter Baum in the Dillinger outbreak in the Wisconsin woods last April, was described by Hoover as a "rat."

Cummings Pleased

Attorney General Cummings, reached by reporters as he boarded a train for the West, first part of a trip to Hawaii, smiled in elation and termed the death of the desperado as "gratifying as well as reassuring."

At Union Station here he dictated the following statement: "The search for Dillinger has never been relaxed for a moment. He has escaped capture on numerous occasions by the narrowest of margins. The news of tonight is extremely gratifying as well as reassuring."

Hoover received reports at his office and announced that Dillinger had drawn a gun in an attempt to shoot his way free but that Melvin H. Purvis, agent in charge of the Chicago office, snatched it from his hand.

"Asked who shot Dillinger, Hoover refused to answer.

"We can't say, that's a trade secret," he remarked. "We don't want to put our man on the spot."

"We have been working on this case all day," he said; "we got our first flash of it this morning."

"I hope you boys will say something about the excellent cooperation our department received from the East Chicago police, particularly from Captain O'Neal and Sergeant Zarkovich."

The trail of the desperado had been followed for a long time by agents under Purvis. Recently Samuel Crowley, another headquarters agent, also was sent to the Midwest from Washington to help in the hunt.

A synopsis of major events in the career of John Dillinger includes the following dates:

June 28, 1904. Born in Indianapolis. His mother never recovered from the birth and died a short time afterward.

1914. Baptized in the Hillside Avenue Deputies of Christ church in Indianapolis.

1919. Quit school to go to work as a machinist.

1920. Moved to Mooreville, Ind., with his father who bought a farm there in the hope of keeping John from the bright lights of the city.

1921-22. Laid out the Mooreville pool hall, hunted, fished and played amateur baseball.

July 23, 1923. Enlisted in the United States Navy after having been jailed by a Mooreville high school girl.

December 1923. Deserted the Navy at Boston, Mass. A reward of $50 was offered for his apprehension, but he was later dishonorably discharged.

April 12, 1924. Married Beryl Hovis, 16, of Mooreville.

Slugs, Robs Grocer
September 1924. He and a companion slugged and robbed a Mooreville grocer B. F. Morgan, for which John was sentenced to serve 10 to 21 years.

1929. While he was in the Michigan City penitentiary his wife divorced him. She is now married to a Morgan (Ind.) county farmer.

March 1932. His elderly father John W. Dillinger, Sr., circulated a petition to effect his release so he could come home and manage the farm.

May 22, 1933. Released on parole by Gov. Paul McNutt on Indiana. His stepmother died 15 minutes before he stepped home.

June 10, 1933. He and a companion held up Fred Fisher, manager of a thread factory in Monticello, Ill. Fisher identified Dillinger and thus started a search that was to become national wide.

July 17, 1933. Held up a bank at Dalesville, Ind., obtaining $3,000.

August 4, 1933. Robbed bank at Monticello, Ind., of $10,000.

September 25, 1933. Captured in Dayton, O., during visit to a girl friend, Mrs. Mary Langnaker, and sent to Lima, O. jail.

September 26, 1933. Four members of his gang and six others escaped from the Michigan City penitentiary with guns Dillinger allegedly smuggled to them.

Rescued from Jail
October 12, 1933. Three members of his gang rescued him from the Lima jail, killing Sheriff Jess Sarber.

October 14, 1933. Raided Auburn, Ind., police station, looting it of machine guns, pistols and bullet-proof vests.

October 21, 1933. Executed a similar raid on police station at Greencastle, Ind.

October 26, 1933. Robbed the Green-castle bank of $14,000 following which he drove to Florida for a vacation.

November 15, 1933. Eluded a police trap set for him and Mrs. Langnaker as he left a physician's office at Irving Park boulevard and Keller avenue in Chicago.

November 20, 1933. Held up a bank at Racine, Wis., obtaining $28,000.

December 13, 1933. He and his gang robbed the Unity Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, of $8,700 and a large quantity of jewelry.

January 15, 1934. Dillinger committed his first and only known murder when he shot death Policeman Patrick O'Malley in the $20,000 robbery of the First National Bank of East Chicago.

January 15, 1934. Capture of Dillinger and three of his gang and their molls at Tucson, Arizona.

March 3, 1934. The grand coup of his sensational career was executed in his escape with only a wooden gun from the jail at Crown Point, Ind.

March 30, 1934. Accompanied by his first lieutenant, John Hamilton, he shot his way out of a police trap in St. Paul taking with him his French Indian informant, Evelyn Frenchette.

April 7, 1934. Visited his father at Mooreville while being hunted over all the country.

April 22, 1934. Federal agents surrounded him in the little Bohemian resort near Mercer, Wis., but he shot his way to freedom, a federal agent and a CWA employee being killed in the battle.

May 1, 1933. Dillinger and three companions dismissed three policemen in Bollwood and slugged one.

May 15, 1934. The Department of Justice offered a $15,000 reward for his capture, dead or alive.

July 22, 1934. Shot dead by federal agents and Indianapolis police as he emerged from a neighborhood movie show on Chicago's Northside.

SANITY HEARING

state penal system to hold a sanity hearing for Mark Shank, contending to die next Friday for the quadruple poison murder of the Alvin Colley family, will be started in Jefferson circuit court Monday, the doomed man's attorneys said Sunday.

Superintendent Todhunter-announced Sunday night he will ignore a petition filed with him for a sanity hearing before a jury of 12 members, and will take no action to delay the scheduled execution unless ordered to do so by a competent court.

Shank's attorneys will petition Circuit Judge T. G. Parham for a writ of mandamus directed against Superintendent Todhunter, and, in event the writ is denied, they will apply to the Arkansas Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, they said.

If the latter course is followed, they will ask the clerk of the Supreme Court to issue a stay or execution until the case is heard.

The supreme court will be asked to direct the Jefferson circuit court to issue a writ of mandamus. In the event the circuit court mandates the superintendent to hold the hearing, the inquiry will be held before 12 members of the Jefferson county petit jury panel, with the superintendent presiding.

If a jury should decide that Shank is insane, he must be committed to the State hospital to remain until his sanity returns, when a new date for his execution may be set.

If the jury should decide Shank is sane, the verdict may be appealed to the supreme court, as was done in the case of W. H. Howell several years ago under similar circumstances. If the verdict should be affirmed, a new date would be set by the governor for the execution.

STOLEN BONDS

man, came to Lawrence county in the spring of 1933 and contacted several business men relative to drilling a test oil well. He closed a contract with John K. Gibson for approximately 40,000 acres of leases, and Myers, a banker of Black Rock, was named as trustee in the drilling finance contract.

After $35,000 or $40,000 worth of bonds had been handled under the contract, Myers said, it developed that a large portion of the securities had been stolen. The bonds had been handled by a Memphis bank, it was said, and as soon as it was determined that the bonds had been acquired in an irregular manner, Myers and the Memphis bank withdrew from the contract relationship.

Myers declared that the agreements he had with the oil operators was personal, and that the First National bank of Lawrence county, of which he is president, was not involved as none of the securities were handled by the bank.

Daring Escape
HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (P)—The three most desperate killers in the Southwest—Raymond, Hamilton, Blackie Thompson and Joe Palmer—escaped from the death house of the state penitentiary here Sunday in a daring break in which one convict was killed, two others wounded, and a guard shot.

The three convicts who were shot, all bank robbers and life termers, were moved down by gunfire of guards as Hamilton, Thompson and Palmer scampered over the wall to two waiting automobiles.

Whitley Walker was killed by the shots of guards whom the convicts engaged in battle. Charlie Frazier, the man who engineered the break, was shot from the ladder with which he was scaling the wall, and was believed wounded fatally. Roy Johnson, third bank robber, was shot and hurt less seriously.

H. E. George, the guard, was stunned momentarily as a bullet creased his scalp. He was not hurt seriously.

The break occurred while the prison yard was almost deserted. All officials and guards not actually on duty, and practically all convicts, were attending a ball game between the prison team and a Conroe team at the athletic field beside the walls.

The escape was the first ever made from the death house, which is located in the center of the prison. In daring and cool execution, the break has no parallel in the annals of the penitentiary.

At 4:30 p. m. an inside guard, Lee Braswell, approached the death house to feed the five inmates. Inside guards are not permitted to carry weapons, as they come closely into contact with the convicts, and it would be possible for the latter on occasions to overpower and disarm them.

As Braswell approached the door, Frazier, crouched against the wall, stepped forward and thrust the muzzle of a .45 caliber revolver against his ribs. In his other hand the convict held another .45.

Frazier marched Braswell into the death house, and compelled him to unlock the cells in which Hamilton, Palmer and Thompson were held. These convicted murderers came out, and Frazier handed Hamilton his extra gun. Braswell was locked in Hamilton's cell.

Summer Slump to Be Less Severe

Substantial Fall Upturn Forecast by NRA Officials

WASHINGTON—(P)—The NRA has been informed by its experts to "gamble" on a substantial fall rise in business and a less than usual slump during the remainder of the summer.

Leon Henderson, chief of the Blue Eagle's Research and Planning Division, held this conclusion Sunday on the basis of a mass of statistical and other data.

Henderson's researches have reported to him that the decline thus far this summer has been less than normal, and that there are now numerous signs of an upward trend in business generally.

There is no expectation, however, of a boom development. Henderson employs most careful language in his estimate of the future. He himself referred today to his attitude of a "gamble" on the basis of the best facts available.

The research chief is paying special attention to what he describes as his "homely indicators." For instance, there has been a gain in the sale of living room rugs, one of the first things which housewives like to replace when funds are available.

There also has been a decline in the number of bachelors, he points out. In one city, for instance, the number of bachelors before the depression was 10,000. This increased to 25,000 at the height of the depression, and is now about 22,000, the expert conclusion being that men with funds are less fearful of marriage.

State Treasurer Leonard reported $617,000 in the sinking fund July 1, and estimated between $700,000 and $900,000 would be added from the July and August gasoline and motor vehicle license taxes.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 19

Referred to the People by the General Assembly in regular session assembled, 1933.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas and by the Senate of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and, upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon, at such an election adopt such Amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

That Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas be amended by adding thereto the following:

SECTION I. Not less than a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly may enact a law.

SECTION II. None of the rates for property, excise, privilege or personal taxes, now levied shall be increased by the General Assembly except after the approval of the qualified electors voting thereon at an election, or in case of an emergency, by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION III. Excepting monies raised or collected for educational purposes, highway purposes, to pay Confederate pensions and the just debts of the State, the General Assembly is hereby prohibited from appropriating or expending more than the sum of Two and One-half Million Dollars for all purposes, for any biennial period; provided the limit herein fixed may be exceeded by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION IV. In making appropriations for any biennial period, the General Assembly shall first pass the General Appropriation Bill provided for in Section 30 of Article 5 of the Constitution, and no other appropriation bill may be enacted before that shall have been done.

SECTION V. No expense shall be incurred or authorized for either House except by a bill duly passed by both Houses and approved by the Governor.

The provisions of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas in conflict with this Amendment are hereby repealed insofar as they are in conflict herewith, and this Amendment shall be self-executing and shall take and have full effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed Amendment.

WITNESS MY HAND AND Official seal of this office this 28th day of March, 1934.

ED F. McDONALD, Secretary of State.
